Action #	Recommended Actions by Category	Pertinence to Guiding Principles and/or Recreation Goals
1.	Preservation Work with public and private organizations and landowners to encourage conservation easements, deed restrictions, land exchanges, and other forms of voluntary land conservation as a means of preserving productive agricultural lands, river corridors, and other critical resources. Rationale: Voluntary tools for land conservation have good potential in Madison County. Private landowners must have ready access to the information and organizations that can help them use such tools.	Guiding Principle 3. Land Use, Economy, Environment, Recreation, 3C's
2.	Establish a program for the purchase of conservation easements and development rights. Incorporate working definitions of productive agricultural lands, important wildlife habitat, and scenic views and vistas (See Actions #4 and #6 below) into the program. If feasible, create a local land trust to oversee fundraising and conservation agreements. Solicit funds from sources such as the federal Farmland Protection Program, the State of Montana, private foundations and individuals. Rationale: Purchase of conservation easements and development rights puts money in the pocket of the individual landowner, who in turn supports the land conservation effort. A local land trust can organize and legitimize a major fundraising effort and conservation easement/purchase of development rights program.	Guiding Principle 2, 3.
